Employed with the New York Department of Education for more than 18 years, Samantha Levine draws on a deep knowledge of Common Core standards to create lesson plans tailored to individual student performance. Additionally, she leverages her experience in lesson development and assessment, as well as ongoing communication between administration, teachers, and parents, to help improve student outcomes. A Teacher Leadership Team member since 2014, Samantha Levine also belongs to the Vertical Planning Team and the Multi-Cultural Planning Team.

Ms. Levine holds a bachelor of arts in elementary education and a master of science in reading from Brooklyn College. An art minor in college, she currently enjoys attending New York museums such as the Museum of Modern Art and the Met Cloisters, the branch of the Metropolitan Museum of Art dedicated to the art and architecture of medieval Europe. She also spends free time cooking, traveling, and attending fitness classes at the gym.
