Throughout his career in the manufacturing of semiconductor assembly equipment, Scott Kulicke demonstrated strong leadership and highly developed industry acumen. He retired in 2010 as president, CEO, and chairman of Kulicke and Soffa Industries, Inc., a triple role in which he served for more than 25 years. President and CEO for a total of 31 years, Scott Kulicke became chairman of the board in 1984.

A graduate of the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania, Scott Kulicke received his bachelor of science in economics in 1973, with a minor concentration in engineering. He began his career as the Asia regional sales manager for Kulicke and Soffa Industries. Successful in selling into this market, which is a key region in the semiconductor assembly industry, Scott Kulicke advanced to the position of engineering project manager in charge of automatic wire bonders, the company's most popular product (Kulicke and Soffa holds a 40 percent market share). Mr. Kulicke oversaw production of the bonders for three years before advancing to executive service. He served in his first executive position as vice president and general manager for a single year and was then named president and CEO. He remained in that position until his retirement.
